

“Sujet Supposé Savoir”
Descriptive Transcript
By The Cyborg Jillian Weise and Canese Jarboe

“Sujet Supposé Savoir”
I just looked it up.

In English, it’s
the “subject
supposed to know.”

The bar is closed.
The jukebox is still on.

There’s a parking lot
w/ a Christmas tree in it.

This town is
fucking deserted.

Oh, we’re in someone’s car.
The rearview mirror.

I can’t read
what that says.

But there’s
neon again.
Back to the town.

This is a storefront
with a mannequin
wearing a gas mask.

The letter “I”
painted on something.

Back to the mannequin.
Flash on. So we can see her better.

I'm startled
by the wide stare
of her gas mask.

I imagine who might buy
this gas mask.

Who
might be afraid?

Or who might have a rubber fetish?

*The sonnet plays. Synth drum seeking stars. It finds stars, stars.
Then it finds wary stars, wary stars. The melody repeats. Music from collander's song "Medicalize Me."*